<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Merrick Belyea</th>
<th>Antony Muia</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Penny Bovell</td>
<td>Lesley Munro</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paul Caporn</td>
<td>Ron Nyisztor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Penny Coss</td>
<td>Kevin Robertson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jo Darbyshire</td>
<td>Helen Smith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarah Elson</td>
<td>Alex Spremberg</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Caspar Fairhall</td>
<td>Angela Stewart</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chris Hopewell</td>
<td>Michele Theunissen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeremy Kirwan-Ward</td>
<td>Paul Uhlmann</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eveline Kotai</td>
<td>Trevor Vickers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joanna Lamb</td>
<td>Peter Zappa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Andre Lipscombe</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

artCollectiveWA
Down South

8 February - 7 June 2015
The idea of having an exhibition down south for artCollectiveWA came out of our desire to show our appreciation of and our support for these artists and their efforts. For so many years, along with a mass of visual art lovers across the metropolitan area, we had taken for granted their self-driven production of new works and the regular exhibitions that followed with their representing galleries. We recognised the dilemma they found themselves in and we respected the initiative they’d showed.

The collective was on board when we put the proposal to them. It presented an opportunity for them to show the Collective artists together at once, room for very large works to be displayed and an interstate and international audience passing through the gallery. The exhibition would have a four month long duration which would give very good exposure.

For the gallery it presented a unique opportunity to show the works of these twenty-three artists, for the enjoyment of Vasse Felix visitors and the wider local audience. The exhibition, intense and visually stunning, stands as a tribute to the continuing presence of this particular group of artists in the West Australian visual arts scene.

Sharon Tassicker
Collection and Exhibitions Manager
Janet Holmes à Court Collection

helen smith
Helen Smith’s practice is influenced by a formal, minimalist viewpoint with simplicity of form and geometric abstraction generally contributing to the outcome. Oil on canvas paintings, large scale wall works and a number of ongoing photographic series derived from an interest in social and cultural systems form the basis for her inquiry.

jeremy kirwan-ward
Jeremy Kirwan-Ward has been an exhibiting painter for four decades — in that time he has had over twenty solo exhibitions and participated in a variety of prestigious group shows. Torrent is his most recently completed work – it’s scale designed to envelop the viewer and provide a physical experience, while the subdued colours within the dark forms invite a closer inspection.

joanna lamb
Joanna Lamb, Suburban House 04, 2014, acrylic on canvas, 122 x 180 cm

penny coss
Penny Coss’s luminous style has evolved from the tradition of abstract expressionism, taking its formal elements and melding them into her own visual gestural language. There are echoes of Helen Frankenthaler; her dramatic painted works of the 1960s taking on a new form as Coss’s staining and soaking of the canvas is permeated with a new interpretation of the Australian landscape. As Coss explains, “My work is about those important moments of exchange within the landscape and with the possibility of being simultaneously in there and out there.”

Excerpt from catalogue essay, Out There by Sandra Murray, Curator Bankwest August 2012

Caspar Fairhall
Caspar Fairhall is a visual artist whose work intersects painting, video and interactive art. As his subject matter, he often looks at the tension between our intuitions of space and time, and what we understand about the world from modern physics. This particular work was inspired by the ancient rock formations of the Pilbara region, Western Australia.

Eveline Kotai
Eveline Kotai lives in Fremantle, Western Australia, and has been exhibiting regularly for 30 years. She continues to produce unexpected combinations of colour, pattern, and texture. Technical mastery and a deep sense of subject have produced strong, idiosyncratic studies. This Margaret River landscape where Kotai lived for 7 years continues to permeate her work as much as her current Fremantle surroundings and engagement with Buddhist philosophy.
Lesley Munro
Lesley Munro is a West Australian artist based in Fremantle. Her painting practice at times drifts into sculpture, revealing a strong interest in abstraction and experiment in the materials and processes of making. Her recent work draws upon the landscape of industrial processes as found in the crafting and repairs that occur within boat making. In Conversations with Time she considers similarities between these processes, and the choices and requirements that create us over a lifetime, ultimately reflecting upon the possibility of restoration within endeavour.

Merrick Belyea
Merrick Belyea has been a prolific Western Australian artist over the past 20 years. For a number of years his work has focussed on the curiously human appetite for destruction. This new body of work is based on aerial photographs taken during World War II in the European and Pacific theatres of war. These paintings are part of an ongoing series of work examining the effects of trauma on an urban landscape. The titles of the paintings refer to a potential for destruction and offer a portent to future mechanical scarring of the landscape. Paring back the veneer of previously prepared paint layers reveal the dirtitud of process and the fragility of surface.

Andre Lipscombe
Andre Lipscombe is a visual artist based in Perth, whose practice is centred upon painting and drawing. He has exhibited regularly since graduating from (WAIT) Curtin University in 1983 and in his early career was a member of a Perth based group of artists committed to representation and figuration, later exhibiting as Oddfellows. Over twenty years he has conducted studio practices in Melbourne, (1990-96) and Esperance, WA (1997-2001) before currently at Artsource, Fremantle. Andre Lipscombe is represented in private and public collections in Western Australia.

Alex Spremberg
Alex Spremberg
Alex Spremberg, Tilting #10, 2002, enamel, varnish on wood, 42 x 32 x 4 cm
Alex Spremberg, More and Less, 2007, varnish on wood, 122 x 200 x 3 cm

Antony Muia
I'm a figurative artist making work about relationships and the body. I'm interested in scenarios that explore the human aesthetic including the nude and themes surrounding 'what it is to be good'. My work often addresses the mundane and illogical and depicts the human condition through sub groups, counter culture and the marginal. I'm interested in how art has with low culture and non art practices and see similarities between the painted portrait and the social media selfie.
Trevor Vickers
Trevor Vickers is one of the most highly regarded artists currently working in Western Australia. He has been exhibiting for almost 50 years primarily in Melbourne and Perth. He exhibited in the 1970s at the avant-garde Pinacotheca Gallery in Melbourne alongside Australia’s most significant conceptual and post-object artists. He also exhibited at the seminal ‘Field’ exhibition in 1968 at the reopening of the National Gallery of Victoria. Arguably the most important single exhibition in Australian art history the exhibition included young artists committed to hard-edged abstraction.

Kevin Robertson
Kevin Robertson was born in Norseman, Western Australia in 1964. He studied painting at the Western Australian Institute of Technology, graduating with a B.A. in 1984 and was also awarded a Master of Arts from the College of Fine Arts, University of New South Wales in 1992. He has had nine solo exhibitions at Galerie Dusseldorf, Perth and participated in numerous group exhibitions nationally and internationally. His work is represented in many public and private collections.

Paul Caporn
Paul Caporn lives and works in Perth, Australia. He has exhibited nationally and internationally, making art primarily in the realms of sculpture, animation, video and installation. His work often engages with themes that circulate notions of industry and science. This can involve a nostalgic play, dealing with technologies in what is often a low-tech manner, describing the relationships between people, memory, time, space and places.

Chris Hopewell
My painting is process orientated, applying gestured marks, tones and textures over the top of a succession of previous layers. My interest is to weave space through these dimensions to create random environments that facilitate threads in free association during the observation of the completed piece. An aesthetic I strive for in my work is that a painting continuously represents itself to the viewer with a “randomness”, that is similar to that employed in the evaluation of the artwork, a phenomenon ever present in the world around us.

Kevin Robertson, Internor with grey scale painting, 2014, oil on linen, 120 x 90 cm
Kevin Robertson, Grey scale painting 1, 2014, acrylic on canvas, 120 x 120 cm
Paul Caporn, Incident with a memory, 2014, neon, resin, timber, media player, 150 x 60 x 20 cm
Paul Caporn, Blueprints for Blackholes and Big Bangs 2, 2013, acrylic and epoxy on canvas, 60 x 90 cm
Paul Caporn, Blueprints for Blackholes and Big Bangs 1, 2013, acrylic and epoxy on canvas, 60 x 90 cm
Kevin Robertson, Stratton B V, 2012, acrylic on canvas, 121.5 x 152.5 cm
Paul Uhlmann
To respire is to breathe in and out – to empty and fill one’s lungs. Echoes of our breathing can be seen writ large over our heads as great volumes of air move and change as airy watery clouds above. These clouds are the stuff of life itself and these shifting forms seem at times to also form images within our minds. A kind of alchemy transpires as wet oil paint is swept together through the focused activity of bodily involvement – the image finds its form through chance and deliberation. I see this process and breathing as part of the beat of my creative life which recognizes the impermanence of all things.

Jo Darbyshire
Jo Darbyshire is an established Western Australian visual artist. She exhibits regularly in solo exhibitions and has an established and successful Public Art profile. Her abstract paintings reference the social and environmental history of places, but also aim to suggest their sensory and poetic nature. These particular paintings were inspired by a residency in Ireland. Jo tried to capture the restrained palette and sensory and poetic nature. These particular paintings were inspired by a residency in Ireland. Jo tried to capture the restrained palette and sensory and poetic nature of Ireland. Jo tried to capture the restrained palette and sensory and poetic nature of Ireland. Jo tried to capture the restrained palette and sensory and poetic nature.

Penny Bovell
Recent investigations with paint involve imagining what deep space might look like. What’s out there? Other night skies #1 and #2 propose a fanciful and playful view of space. I have relied on accidental and poured methods to create shapes that float, fall, explode and morph. I understand Cosmology to be an investigation of space beyond what we can visibly see, employing knowledge of science, spirituality, poetry, perhaps even science fiction to reflect on how we belong in the world. Other night skies #1 and #2 propose a fanciful and playful view of space. I have relied on accidental and poured methods to create shapes that float, fall, explode and morph. I understand Cosmology to be an investigation of space beyond what we can visibly see, employing knowledge of science, spirituality, poetry, perhaps even science fiction to reflect on how we belong in the world.

Angela Stewart
Angela Stewart is a visual artist whose practice includes Portraiture and Renaissance painting. Her recent body of work examines the detail in costumes and landscape that may surround a historical portrait. Placed out of context these oval and circular works suggest to be ‘detail’ of a painting yet to be made or discovered. They combine delicately painted portrait fragments and sumptuous floral and lace motifs with stencilled acrylic and layered oil paint.

Jo Darbyshire, Watervelo, 2013, oil on canvas, 150 x 140 cm
Jo Darbyshire, Ballinskelligs Bay, 2013, oil on canvas, 84 x 112 cm
Penny Bovell, Other night skies #1, 2014, acrylic on canvas, 120 x 120 cm
Penny Bovell, Other night skies #2, 2014, acrylic on canvas, 120 x 120 cm
Angela Stewart, Poesis #12, 2014, oil and acrylic on board, 75 cm
Michele Theunissen, Ways to nothing #5, 2014, pigment, acrylic, artists’ ink, 152 x 137 cm
Sarah Elson
The body of work Phalanenopsis therapy plays homage to Rene Mackintosh designs and the recent fire that destroyed his work in the library at Glasgow School of Art. It consists of an installation of several cast orchids in varying states of flowering with each stem of the orchid forming a wearable pin. Elson uses re-claimed metal to re-flesh plants and found matter into intimate sculptural forms and her works are often made up of individual parts that can be worn as jewellery or pinned into a surface.

Peter Zappa
My artworks explore the aesthetics of drawing. In recent years, I have used sculpture as the medium to create three dimensional drawings or ‘drawings in space’. In transposing a drawing from paper into a metal sculpture, the work defies definitions as the object that is seen by the viewer will depend on where you view the work. My current work explores mark making using pencils. The dissection of mark making reveals an unseen aesthetic that deconstructs the mark maker into colour, texture, shape and dynamic forms.

Acknowledgements
The Gallery would like to thank the following for their contribution to this project:

Janet Holmes à Court
Paul Holmes à Court
Sharon Tassicker
artCollective WA artists
Felicity Johnston
Megan Schlipalius
Elsie Metcalf
Clare McFarlane
Peter Usher
Vasse Felix staff

Published by Holmes à Court Gallery, on the occasion of the exhibition:

artCollectiveWA
Down South
8 February - 7 June 2015

ISBN: 978-0-9805808-8-4
Editor: Sharon Tassicker, Collection and Exhibitions Manager, Janet Holmes à Court Collection
Catalogue design by Clare McFarlane
Artworks © the artists
All right reserved

Artists’ CVs may be viewed in full at www.artcollectivewa.com.au

Sarah Elson, Phalanenopsis therapy, 2014, reclaimed silver, copper and gold alloys in perspex, 230 x 150 x 180 cm, (multi-piece installation)

Peter Zappa, The Mound, 2014, hand worked and welded stainless steel, 106 x 80 x 20 cm